With the support of the Lifelong Learning Programme of the European Union

ALCE - Appetite for Learning Comes with Eating

ALCE is an innovative and participative project that brings together women from various social, cultural and ethnic backgrounds as well as two different age groups.

Through a series of group activities that address knowledge acquisition, capacity training, and intercultural and intergenerational exchange, the project aims to develop learners' skills, build durable networks and promote dialogue between the various groups that make up contemporary society.

ALCE - Appetite for Learning Comes with Eating is a two-year Grundtvig Multilateral project under the Lifelong Learning Programme.

The ALCE project is composed of:

- Active learning training course in 5 countries
- EU course about creation of cultural events
- EU roadmap of cultural events
- Creation of a recipe book and a pedagogical Manual

ALCE'S main objectives:

- Promoting the integration of social groups subject to multiple discrimination
- Promotion of acquisition of key competences through non-formal learning processes
- Fostering intercultural and intergenerational dialogue
- Exchanging culinary traditions and natural curative methods

The learning sessions:

- Exchange of knowledge on food, culinary traditions and healing methods
- Learning mobility
- Organisation of cultural events
- The creation of a recipe book
- Establishing principles for effective intercultural and intergenerational knowledge sharing

ALCE'S target groups:

- Native senior women
- Young migrant women
- Trainers
